Title: Chicken Tikka Overview

Chicken tikka is a popular South Asian dish made from boneless pieces of chicken marinated in yogurt and spices. Common spices in the marinade include turmeric, cumin, coriander, chili powder, garlic, and ginger.

The marinated chicken is traditionally cooked in a tandoor, which gives it a smoky flavor and slightly charred edges. Modern versions can also be cooked on a grill or in an oven.

Chicken tikka is often served with lemon wedges, onions, and mint chutney. It can also be used in wraps, salads, or cooked further with a creamy sauce to make chicken tikka masala.

Title: Mutton Curry Basics

Mutton curry is a slow-cooked dish made using goat or lamb meat, simmered with a mixture of onions, tomatoes, yogurt, and spices. Popular spices include garam masala, turmeric, cinnamon, cloves, and bay leaves.

The key to a tender mutton curry is long cooking on low heat, allowing the connective tissues to break down. Pressure cookers are also commonly used to speed up this process.

Different regions have unique variations—some versions use coconut milk, others rely on roasted spices, and some include potatoes. Mutton curry is typically served with rice, chapati, or naan.
